Message from the Mayor

Moroyama is a town rich in nature and steeped in the history and culture of our forebears, with beautiful countrysides, clear streams and historical neighborhoods. Living in the traditional Japanese village which is Moroyama fills me with pride, and more than anything I hope that this guidebook will impart the spirit of the local townspeople as they go about their daily lives, hope ever in their breasts.

Located within the 50km metropolis sphere of Tokyo, Moroyama experienced a sudden population growth since the first half of the 1960s which has led to continued positive urbanization and development ever since.

The name Moroyama is believed to have been established around the mid-Nara period (710-794). Moro Hamlet, seat of the Moro Clan, became Moro Village, later merging with Yamane Village to become Moroyamamachi. In 1955, 60 years ago this year, Moroyamamachi merged with Kawakado Village to reach its present-day size. Over these 60 years, Moroyamamachi has relied on the support and understanding of many to transform it into the vibrant town it is today.

The 4th Comprehensive Promotion Plan, which is a guideline for development of the town, will also reach the final year of its last stage in 2015. As a result, a 5th Comprehensive Promotion Plan will be established, with guidelines for town planning for the next 10 years. Cooperative town planning, with participation from all citizens, will be indispensable for our future, making concepts of self-help, cooperation and public assistance more important than ever. We will continue to focus on combining the strengths of our citizens to create a Moroyamamachi that is rich in hopes and dreams.

Moroyamamachi is a town with Yabusame (a tradition of horseback archery with over 950 years of history), the first town in Japan to specialize in producing Yuzu (Japanese citrons), the town where Saneatsu Mushanokoji's utopian Atarashiki-mura ("New Village) can be found, and a town with leading medical care and welfare thanks to Saitama Medical University Hospital. I hope that reading this guidebook will deepen your understanding of Moroyamamachi, and that your continued cooperation will help us to carry on into the future all that the town has to offer.

February, 2015

Kenji Inoue, Mayor of Moroyama

Assembly/Administration

The Moroyama assembly comprises 14 members, who are voted into office to represent the citizens every four years. Regular and extraordinary sessions are held to deliberate on local regulationns and budgets.

The town aims to create a safe and comfortable place to live while also preserving the natural environment. Town planning is carried out through cooperation between the citizens and administration.
